RE: Certificate of Appropriateness

5 W Hargett Street Canopy #1530

A new entrance canopy is proposed for the Raleigh Building (formerly known as the Raleigh Banking and Trust Company Building) on West Hargett Street in downtown Raleigh. The new canopy will reflect the Art Moderne style of the building better than the existing fabric awning. Structural drawings from 1935 indicate the presence of an entrance marquis, though no other drawings or photographs have been located to show that it was built.

The first floor of the building houses a CVS to the east of the entrance at the corner of Hargett and Fayetteville Streets and the future Raleigh Raw store to the west of the entrance. The remaining 10 floors are office space.

The canopy will be clad in black spandrel glass and brushed aluminum. This is reminiscent of the storefront façade seen in photographs of the building from the late 1930's after the 1935 renovation transformed the building in the Art Moderne style. Spandrel glass is used as a replacement for the now unavailable Carrara glass used in Art Deco and Art Moderne buildings. Brushed aluminum is a modern take on the polished metal finish that would have been popular at that time.

The canopy measures 8'-9" across the front, 5'-8" in depth, and 16" in height. It protrudes from the edge of the building 2'-0". A standard aluminum canopy will be used as the structural frame. That frame will be wrapped in black spandrel glass and completed with a roll formed brushed aluminum detail at the cornice and drip edge. The ceiling will be a cementitious soffit with recessed LED lights. The canopy attaches at an existing steel beam and receives additional support from overhead hangers. The hangers are required to meet structural requirements.

Removal of the current fabric awning will reveal a glass panel over the doors with the lettering "Raleigh Building." The sign will remain intact.

The attached photographs, renderings and architectural drawings provide information on existing and historical conditions as well as documentation on the proposed canopy.
